Project SERVE Background

Project SERVE (Stem Educators with Resilience, Vision and Expertise) invites applicants for the National Science Foundation (NSF) Robert Noyce Teacher Scholarship and Stipend Program at Doane University. Project SERVE is a rigorous teacher preparation program that will produce certified STEM teachers with the skills to teach effectively in high-need (urban and rural) schools and persist within their profession. A high-need school means a local educational agency (for example, a school district) that serves secondary school located in an area which is characterized by at least one of the following: (a) a high percentage of individuals from families with incomes below the poverty line; (b) a high percentage of secondary school teachers not teaching in the content area in which they were trained to teach; or (c) a high teacher turnover rate.

Noyce Scholars will receive a $14,000 scholarship in their junior year and $24,500 scholarships in their extended senior year funded by NSF. Noyce Scholars must commit to completing two years of service in a high-needs school as a mathematics or science teacher for each year of scholarship or stipend received.

Eligibility Requirements

- Sophomore standing with a minimum GPA of 3.0
- U.S. citizen, U.S. national, or permanent resident status
- Must pursue an undergraduate degree in a STEM field and complete a secondary teaching endorsement
- Achieve passing scores in the Praxis Core Academic Skills for Educators (Reading, Writing, and Mathematics)

Call for Applicants

Because the teacher workforce does not currently reflect the rich diversity of our students across classrooms, we are committed to serving an active role in preparing future educators from all backgrounds. Our children deserve to have teachers that they can identify with throughout their educational journey, and you have the opportunity to help us make that happen. Project SERVE seeks to admit a diverse group of students and encourages student applications from all identities and backgrounds including race, ethnicity, socio-economic status, gender and sexuality spectrums, religious identity, ability levels, among other differences. Consideration will also be given to student's financial need.
